Fred Phillips Consulting (FPC) is looking for a mid-level Landscape Architect/Restoration Program Manager. This position is based in Ridgway, Colorado; remote work may be possible. For the last 26 years, Fred Phillips has been a leader in resource management, landscape design, and ecological restoration in the Southwest. This position will include (but not be limited to) the following duties:

- Assisting in a large-scale GIS riparian vegetation/restoration mapping
- Assisting in completing grants, restoration plans, and design documents
- Performing site analysis on restoration sites, including wetland delineation, vegetation surveys, and soil analysis
- Assisting with writing and editing technical work documents, including wetland delineations, ACOE 404 Permits environmental assessments, and permitting documents
- Completing ARC GIS/CADD mapping/design of large-scale restoration projects
- Developing perspective sketches, renderings, and details of designs
- Assisting with design details, research, and presentation graphics
- Assisting with day-to-day administration work
- Running field restoration crews in remote areas

Must have a degree in Landscape Architecture, Environmental Engineering, or a similar field and some practical experience in the field. Must have strong graphic design and writing skills and be able to work independently. Must be proficient in Arc GIS, CADD, Adobe CS and Microsoft Office. Technical writing skills, working in challenging remote field conditions, outdoor guiding/field experience, landscape construction, and experience working with diverse cultures are preferred. This job includes 3 weeks paid vacation, 11 paid holidays (including personal day), stipend for health, two teeth cleanings a year and annual bonuses. Must have own reliable transportation and be willing to work some weekends during field season (May-Oct). FPC is looking for a 2 year commitment in regards to this position.

If you want to learn ecological restoration planning, design, fundraising, and construction and work with diverse communities in stunning landscapes, this is a great opportunity for you.
